

'A field report from inside the digital dollar economy: '

Four cities. Four people. The same invisible infrastructure.
Bogota. Harare. Lagos. A rooftop in Buenos Aires,

When the old banking pipes break, the people who feel it first are the ones moving money across borders. Pablo in Bogotá sends medicine money to his mother in 90 seconds for under 2 dollars. Mercy in Harare protects a women's savings club from 56% inflation by parking everything in a digital dollar. Femi in Lagos closes a 100,000-dollar supplier deal from the back of a parked car.

This is what happens when stablecoins quietly become the bridge from slow money to fast money — not the speculation side of crypto, the side that just works.

GIANY ROX is the founder of AGFarms, a venture studio shipping 16+ products from a single terminal. His writing on math, money, and the future of work has appeared on Medium for years.

AGFARMS

YOUR MONEY IS BROKEN
GIANY ROX

YOUR MONEY IS BROKEN

How Stablecoins Bridge Slow Money to Fast Money

0aa1f3...e9c2

0

0x471

c857

0xd f0

7df0

0xa1b

0

GIANY ROX